1 Thessalonians 5:12-15, 25-28

12We ask you, brothers, to respect those who labor among you and are over you in the Lord and admonish you, 13and to esteem them very highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. 14And we urge you, brothers, admonish the idle, encourage the fainthearted, help the weak, be patient with them all. 15See that no one repays anyone evil for evil, but always seek to do good to one another and to everyone... 25Brothers and sisters, pray for us. 26Greet all God's people with a holy kiss. 27I charge you before the Lord to have this letter read to all the brothers and sisters. 28The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Intro

Good morning, my name is John Seago I serve as one of your elders here at City Life and if I haven't met you please come say hey on your way out after the service. I'd love to meet you.

Our passage this morning is about how God has designed the church as a family.

In Thessalonians, Paul keeps repeating sibling language, not saying 'fellow Christians, or fellow saints, but 'brothers and sisters.'

What we're doing as Christians here in church is closer to family life than going to a concert, working for the same company, or even being members of the same fan club.

There is a deeper bond between us all, there is deeper meaning for us gathering today and multiple times throughout the week, and there's a higher obligation for us as a family.

Today, we see in 1 Thessalonians this vision for a peaceful family and guidelines for the family to flourish.

Recently, my six-year-old daughter had a school assignment to write out what the three top rules for her house were.

Now, this kind of thing is nerve-racking for a parent, because who knows what my daughter was going to tell the outside world about what happens behind closed doors, you know?

Sometimes things get crazy. Sometimes our dinners are interrupted by competing air-guitar solos between me and the kids... It just happens. So we were a little worried of what family secrets my daughter would reveal.

Now, she is a first grader, so I'll translate a little.

Top one: Ask if you can play on tablet. – Yes, we limit their screen time.

Bottom one: Have to do what parents say. – Ok, I'd prefer she 'gets' to do what parents say, but pretty good.

Then the middle rule here: 'No jumping on the Bible.' – Now, sure me and my wife have probably had to tell our children this before, its entirely possible. But this is not something I would expect to make our top three rules of the house.

My wife and I set norms for the household, what time our children have to go to bed, what they can eat and when, how much screen time they can have during the week. And we have all these rules because at the end of the day we don't want our children to have any fun or a fulfilling childhood.

No. We have a structure, guidelines, and an ideal for our family because we want our house to be a place of peace, joy, love, where we all can flourish.

This is the vision we see that God has for the church as a family through the guidelines and instructions he gives us today to promote our flourishing and his glory.

Lets pray.

So our main points this morning: 1) Church designed as the household of God 2) Called to be a discerning Family 3) General house principles.

First, Church designed as the Household of God

The church acting like a family may not sound ideal.

We may not all have ideal family pictures to look back on for this metaphor, but you long for a home of full acceptance and unconditional love. You want people who are looking out for your good, even if that means having the hard conversations or helping you see truth you're ignoring.

The philosopher George Santayana argued that the ideal society naturally grows from the family. He wrote, "The family is one of nature's masterpieces."

Well, it is a masterpiece but given to us by God.

The Lord designed the family to be a place of flourishing, but in our fallen world many homes reflect more of the brokenness of sin than the grace of a heavenly Father.

What you may not find in your childhood home, or your biological family, God is doing in the church, among his family.

God's vision for the church is one of peace, a place of identity and belonging.

How do you view what's going on this morning? Not an event, concert, weekly obligation, lecture to attend.

Biblical vision of the family: love, dedication, affection, respect, honor, obedience

This is what calls us to here, and this leads to us flourishing spiritually, socially, and physically.

Clear authority structure

One of the ways God designed the church like a family is with a clear authority structure.

Verse 12-13 is an imperative here to respect church leaders.

"We ask you, brothers, to respect those who labor among you and are over you in the Lord and admonish you, 13 and to esteem them very highly in love because of their work."

This is an apt summary of what church leaders do, they labor among you, they lead you, and admonish you.

They are over you in the Lord.

When the early church was formed in Acts we see offices of elders and deacons designed to lead. Throughout scripture we see this instruction for elders to serve in "managing" or "shepherding" the local church and those in it.

Elders are to be the doctrinal and ethical guardians of the church.

To be clear, we're sinners just like you, brothers in Christ who need community and need God's grace through the church.

But "As God's stewards, the elders have been entrusted with the responsibility and authority to manage the household of God" a serious undertaking for which they will be held accountable by their Master"

This is why Paul says church leaders are over you in the Lord – they are not the ultimate authority or above accountability, in fact we're accountable to God and you fellow saints.

2. With this role comes the responsibility to admonish.

We're not lecturers to pass off information, but our call is to be tools of the Spirit to change lives, open eyes, reveal sin, and urge the church to run back to Christ.

Think of the image of a shepherd, he directs the sheep away from danger, a cliff, or dangerous animals. This job of redirecting is helpful, because as your elder, even here in a sermon, I am not supposed to be directing your attention to me, to my insight and advice, but redirecting you, imploring you to something better. The flawless and best shepherd Christ. Look there.

Listen to him. Follow him.

It's not out of moral superiority, but out of concern.

With confidence we can warn our brothers in Christ to flee the idol of comfort that leads you to do bare minimum at home in parenting or serving your wife. This self-centeredness is captivity to sin. This idol does not bring joy, it ruins marriages, families, and your contentment in Christ.

We can sit down and kindly but bluntly tell a sister in Christ that she has a greater worth and strong identity in Christ than in trying to anxiously please her boss or coworkers. Please quit obsessing over what those unanswered emails say about you and listen to what Christ is saying about you here in Scripture. You're a valuable adopted daughter in the family of God. Take a deep breath in that grace.

Thessalonica church needed this type of leadership had some in the church living disorderly manner to the extent it was reflecting badly on the faith (5:14).

As Americans we don't like this. Being admonished, authority structures, submission, by nature we rebel against clear authority structures.

But as members of the body of Christ, we are told to respect and honor our leaders and to pray that God will give them grace and wisdom to carry out their calling.

Submission is not a bad word. Even as an elder we have to submit to the authority of one another when working through disagreements or different perspectives.

I've had to submit to God by following the lead of the other elders when I thought I had a better strategy or approach to a trial in the church. The other three elders had a peace about a plan and had concerns about my suggestions. I submitted to God but following their lead on this and the Lord showed me after that my pride and how I was not loving the church well but insisting on my own way.

Above that we're told to submit to God.

This is how we're supposed to respond to leadership here in verse 12-13 we are told to respond in three ways: respect and appreciate for their hard work.

Paul writes, "esteem them very highly in love because of their work" (v13).

1 Tim 5:7 says "work hard at preaching and teaching," and this work is a labor. Being poured out for your sake. Time, energy, emotionally draining.

In 2 Cor Paul uses the image that the leaders have "opened wide our hearts for you" and tells the church to do the same for leadership.

As your elders we love you all. We pray for you regularly. We want to build you up that you flourish in Christ.

If this was a personal view or rule we live by then church leaders could be seen as just CEOs who are head of company trying to make costumers happy or pleased with a product.

Then if the church is not delivering, we'll go find a different brand.

The barista at this coffee shop is rude and always takes too long, I'm going to pick a new usual coffee spot. I'll take my business somewhere else.

This is not how we're to respond or hold our church leaders.

We're to be members of a family, not consumers of a product.

The passage describes what church leaders do as "toil," the same term as manual labor.

As elders we're on the "front line" of our mission, leading you into battle. This is spiritual conflict, and the church needs men who will lay down thier lives for the gsopel, for the family, for the mission.

We're many times the first responders to spiritual warefare: crisis counseling, conflict resolution, prophetic message to culture/church.

Examples. Even draw out examples from sermons and couseling, and say,

That's the kind of leaders you have that follow King Jesus into these conflict, and help steer you away from harm.

The goal of the family design is peace (v13b, 28)

He says at the end of verse 13, "Be at peace among yourselves"

All these instructions in this section are to promote peace.

There will not be peace if we view the church as a customer, a business, a duty, or any other model.

Definition or image of peace

We'll see that the church cannot be a place of peace when we don't follow scripture's vision for us, when we come with self-centeredness, impatience, critical of others.

We're supposed to have familial love and affection (v13a, 15, 26)

This passage is similar to Paul's call earlier in Thessalonians for their love to abound more and more.

Verse 15 says "always seek to do good to one another and to everyone..."

In a very similar passage, in Romans 12, Paul writes,

"10Love one another with brotherly affection....15Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. 16Live in harmony with one another...Do not be overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good."

V26 – "Greet all God's people with a holy kiss."

I feel like a lot of you are listening more closely to the application here.

For the Thessalonians, kissing was a sign of close familial relationship and reconciliation among antagonists in Greco-Roman world.

This was imbedded in a culture where there were racial tensions and taboos.

Paul is telling them to openly show they love one another in contradiction or refutation of former antagonistic barriers of gender, race (Jew and Gentile) and social rank (slaves and free), which have been broken down by Christ's work that allows us to be adopted in to God's family."

A sign of diverse people groups in Christ part of a newly constituted spiritual family at peace with one another.

We don't have to kiss, but we do have to show affection. That could be in words of affirmation, encouragement, thankfulness, or other signs.

For me, I need to ask how do I communicate my affection: for some of you its hugging. To be clear, I'm not a hugger. I don't get it, but it tells Peter Craig I love him.

Just one of the ways I'm being called to die to myself and serve the church.

This love and affection is not conjured up by our will power. It flows from the overwhelming love of our heavenly father.

I come from a big family, eight children, and for Thanksgiving everyone flies in to my parents house where we set up the tables spread with multiple tables outside in my parents yard. Its in Texas, so the weather we're usually still wearing shorts. And all our family is there sharing a meal and at the head of the table is my Dad who is looking down the table just beaming. Such pride and joy in his children and more in his grandchildren. Now we're not perfect. This sibling is not talking to that sibling, these cousins are shooting spitwads at each other, our family is a bunch of sinners. Put my father is still proud, he still loves, he's still patient, and delights in his family.

Even more so our heavenly father. He's not blind, he knows our sin, he sees our petty fights, our jealousy and internal criticism of each other. Yet, he loves. He loves so much is died for those relational conflicts.

This is the gospel. He brought us into his family, but giving us faith to believe in Christ. We were on our own following our own desires, hopeless without a deep identity, without meaning, and separated from our own creator. Christ came into the world to sacrifice himself to reconcile us to our heavenly father who we ran away from in sin. We now sit at his table, feast on his grace, and live in his family.

And he is still working through his Spirit to create more peace where there is discord and uses his word to instruct us of how to relate to one another.

That's what we see in this next passage.

Discerning Family

Verse 14 could look like a random list of instructions, but in reality, this calls us to discernment. We have to be sensitive enough to appropriately respond to our brothers and sisters given their specific situation and circumstance. (v14)

If someone is idle I am supposed to respond this way, if someone is fainthearted my response is different, but if they're not fainthearted, just weak, my approach ought to be different than those two.

We have to apply biblical knowledge, to figure out how we should respond in each situation.

There are many general biblical principles, but there are also times when one-size-fits-all response does not fit all circumstances.

Like buying a new tool then walking around the house looking for how to use it. No you don't need a power drill to wash dishes. Yes, I've seen the YouTube videos.

We've all been there when you share about a circumstance about being stressed out, anxious and overwhelmed. Some just says, you should trust the Lord more. – Well, yes that's true, but applying the gospel is more specific and richer than that.

Sometimes anxiety is from fear of man – worried what reputation you'll have if you don't serve on every ministry team

Anxiety could be stemming from pride of thinking that the success of a project or my family all depends upon me being perfect.

We need Spirit-led discernment to live in the community of God. Paul alludes to this when he lays out different ways to respond to fellow Christians in various circumstances.

Admonish the idle (v14a)

This is an unfortunate translation, because it does not mean lazy.

The term “idle” here means undisciplined, insubordinate, disruptive.

Practically in our church, this will probably look like someone restlessly filling up their schedule.

Disordered priorities and undisciplined lifestyle.

If you see a fellow Christian disappear from church rhythms, consistently missing Sunday and City Group, prioritizing other activities above seeking God.

You are seeking their good when you ask the hard questions.

Encourage the fainthearted (v14b)

Those losing steam, become discouraged or timid in faith.

We need to look at our friends and fellow Christians in trials or trying circumstances.

Its tempting to say don't bring your negative vibes over here. But we're called to weep with those who weep, come along side the down trodden, not to solve their problems, but to point them back to Christ.

What is your response when someone in your City Group is dealing with a death, loneliness, or overwhelmed by the brokenness of the world?

Do you try to quarantine them, tell them you'll pray for them so they stop bugging you with their problems, or do you embrace them?

We're called to encourage them that the God of peace is near.

Help the weak (v14c)

Last instruction is to 'Help the Weak.'

This is those falling into sin, feel unable to walk in manner worthy of the Lord,

This could be morally, psychologically, or spiritually weak, but it could also be some physical weakness or incapacity: sick, lame, blind, or economically destitute.

We're called to help them. This is spiritual and physically.

General house principles

We need discernment to tell how to respond to each other, do they need admonishment or encouragement. But there are also some universal guidelines in our passage that tell us to practice no matter what.

First we're told to 'Be patient with them all' (v14d)

No matter who we're dealing with, our relationships are supposed to be thoroughly seasoned with patience. – As thorough as __.

This is one concrete way that we can radically love with other members of the household of God.

This is a very practical way to be self-sacrificing.

1 Cor 13 that's lists the defining features and characteristics of love. It's an ideal vision of godly, Christ-like love. This long list of adjectives and descriptions of what it means to love others. The very first word is patient. “Love is patient and kind, love does not envy or boast, it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing, but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.”

Patience means setting aside my timeline or agenda for the good of someone else.

When someone is sharing their difficulties at work or in family dynamics are you internally wanting them to speed it up? Want to jump to the point when you give them your answer or advice?

Maybe you need patience to keep loving someone, keeping encouraging them, keep helping them fight for faith. Patience when they just won't take your good advice!

Church, imagine, if God has shown patience with us, after a lifetime of repeated sin, the same foolish mistakes again and again, day in and day out... should we not also desire to show patience to our brothers and sisters in Christ?

Always forgiving (v15a)

Paul writes in verse 15, “See that no one repays evil for evil,”

This implies we're being sinned against and letting it go.

We love others by always forgiving.

1 Peter 4:7 says "Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins."

Jesus himself explained, "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' But I say to you, Do not resist the one who is evil. But if anyone slaps you on the right cheek, turn to him the other also."

"Revenge is one of the most instinctive and natural sins, and it was the early Christian practice of the radical ethic of 5:15 that likely had significant impact on the spread of Christianity throughout the ancient world."

Instead, we're supposed to always seek to do good to one another and to everyone.

Instead of acting on personal rights, but acting on sacrificial love.

Instead of running to court for payback and self-interest, running to serve, forgive, and love.

Self-interest is like a dramatic soccer player, when he gets sinned against he flops around on the ground making much of the offense against him. But love is like US WNT player, who famously were severely fouled, to the point where their head was bleeding, and she kept playing.

Lastly, everyone is responsible for the peace of the household (v12a, 27)

Paul closes in V27 something we could overlook. He writes, "I charge you before the Lord to have this letter read to all the brothers and sisters."

This is important for reasons that Scripture and ministry of the word is central to the mission of the local church, but also these instructions about creating peace in the household of God are for the whole family.

There is a clear authority structure, but remember this is a family not a business where you have staff and customers.

We all are the body of Christ and called to build each other up.

Ephesians 4:15-16 says, "Speaking the truth in love, we are to grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ, from whom the whole body, joined and held together by every joint with which it is equipped, when each part is working properly, makes the body grow so that it builds itself up in love."

V25 - Brothers and sisters, pray for us.

Following the admonition in verse 17 to pray without ceasing.

Praying for one another, not just in gratitude or for our personal individual needs, but supplication for one another.

This makes sense, we must plead that the Lord will create peace, help us forgive, encourage, and love another.

There is not other way it will happen. We need God to do it.

Peace is a gift of God. Verse 23 clarifies that God's people can only have peace if he gives it to them.
